A photograph of a person's legs and arms as they lift a large, heavy, light-colored concrete bucket. The person is wearing dark trousers and is barefoot. The bucket has a simple, circular, recessed handle. The scene is set outdoors on a beach or near water, with a blue sky and water in the background. A blue rectangular frame highlights the bucket and the person's hand on the handle.

Minimalist handles challenge the visual weight of concrete. You think you can pick me up?

A place of balance and equilibrium. A smooth, beveled edge gently guides the eye around the mass, showcasing its fields of stone.

DESIGNER

Zac Bitner

Inspired by the dark and light sands interacting on its namesake beach, Coronado is created through motion.
A harmony of slow rotation and dancing with its mold leaves a surface defined by the movement of the liquid that shapes it.
